IN MEMORY OF
STEFANIE SPIELMAN
1967 - 2009

In November 2009, after a decade-long battle, Stefanie left us with a final thought: continue to fight. Through it all, Stefanie kept a positive attitude and was always grateful for the blessings she felt life had given her. Knowing that there is still more work to be done, she has encouraged us all to keep fighting and she has left us with a legacy of hope.

Through her remarkable grace and compassion for others, Stefanie Spielman taught all of us powerful lessons about the human capacity for love and courage.

President, The Ohio State University

A Message from Chris

Over the past year, our family has received an outpouring of support and love from the community and we cannot thank you enough for your kindness. In the midst of the sadness and our loss, we have found a great deal of strength in the community's desire to help.

Even though Stefanie is no longer with us, we are continuing her legacy by making great strides in the fight against breast cancer. I am both pleased and amazed to announce that the Spielman funds have reached $7.9 million since 1998. We could have never accomplished this without your help and I want to extend a heartfelt thank you to all those who have committed their efforts to this cause.

I am continually amazed with our Community Partners who have stepped up to join us in the fight against breast cancer. This past fiscal year, our communities organized more than 150 events and donated more than $892,349 to the Spielman Funds. Over $56,000 of that came from K-12 school fundraisers. All of these fundraisers are organized and supported by individuals and companies in the community who generously give their time and efforts to orchestrate successful events and initiatives. I am proud to say that all of the money raised goes entirely to support research and patient care that is truly helping to make a difference in the lives of cancer patients and their families. Again, thank you to all our Community Partners for supporting the Spielman Funds and for your contribution to keeping Stefanie's legacy alive.

As you know, Stefanie was a woman of great optimism. She had hope for new research, for new treatment options and hope that one day we will discover a cure for cancer. It is my prayer that all of us will continue to find strength and comfort in the vision that Stefanie shared with us.

It was Stefanie's wish that I would do whatever I can to continue this fight against breast cancer. I am committed to this fight but I cannot do it alone. It is going to take all of us working together to end this disease. I want to encourage all of you to keep supporting, keep fundraising and keep believing that we can find a cure. Together, we will continue to fight and continue to live.

God bless,

Chris

Stefanie's Legacy...

CEO, James Cancer Hospital and Solove Research Institute

Not only did Stefanie Spielman create Stefanie's Champions, but through her tireless devotion and advocacy for patient care support and more research into the prevention and treatment of breast cancer, she helped raise millions of dollars for cancer research through the Stefanie Spielman Fund for Breast Cancer Research at The James. She will be missed, but never forgotten. Her passion and commitment will live on for generations to come. She's truly a champion. She was absolutely critical to the battle. This was her calling. She rose to the calling like no other.

During her decade-long battle, Stefanie showed strength, grace, determination and compassion. Rather than keep her diagnosis private, she stepped into the spotlight to share her cancer story, hoping to raise awareness for early detection and money for research. In addition to creating funds to support research endeavors and patient needs, Stefanie

I, like many of you, witnessed Stefanie in action during one of these engagements and one word describes her impact and affect: Inspiring! Stefanie embraced life. She was open, honest and compassionate, and she always spoke of hope. Hope for new research, hope for new treatment options and hope that, one day, we will discover a cure for cancer. Her passion and commitment were amazing. I know that Stefanie's legacy will continue to live on through her family, friends and the funds at the OSUCCC - James.

I was captivated by the story of Chris and Stefanie and how he left the NFL late in his career to be there to take care of her and the kids. After meeting them and seeing their amazing love for each other and dedication to the path their lives had taken, I was "all in" to support their fundraising efforts, whether through A Christmas To Cure Cancer, Stefanie's Champions, The Spielman Scramble or the Buckeye Cruise for Cancer. Stefanie was not only an amazing advocate in the fight against cancer, but a friend who was always thinking of other people before herself. She demonstrated that toward me on more than one occasion and I'll never forget it.

Stefanie's contribution to find a cure for breast cancer has been invaluable and will continue until a cure is found. She and I once talked about how surprised she was with how quickly they surpassed their initial goals for raising funds for research. She underestimated her impact and was always so modest. SMASH with LOVE chose to donate our funds, over $350,000, to the James because they shared our need to make a difference and find a cure for our mothers, daughters, and friends. Stefanie embodied this passion and set the tone for all of us. She has touched so many hearts with her courage and renews our resolve to find a cure!

The most special part of the cruise was watching cancer survivors talk to Stefanie. She always made time for them, listening to their story with great passion and interest. Another touching story for me to share is that of a passenger who once wrote Stefanie a letter about her own battle with cancer. Stefanie wrote her back and her words were so moving and thoughtful, that the passenger told me she read her letter every night to help her through her treatment.

The Funds at Work

Since 1998, more than $7.9 million has been raised for the Stefanie Spielman Fund for Patient Assistance and The Stefanie Spielman Fund for Breast Cancer Research at The Ohio State University Comprehensive Cancer Center – Arthur G. James Cancer Hospital and Richard J. Solove Research Institute (OSUCCC – James).

The Stefanie Spielman Fund for Patient Assistance assists breast cancer patients and families who are struggling to afford the costs associated with treatment. The fund has provided essential equipment and services, including circulation pumps for lymphedema, compression garments, wigs, nutrition supplements, gas cards, restaurant gift cards and assistance with transportation.

The Stefanie Spielman Fund for Breast Cancer Research is devoted to advancing research in breast cancer. Over the past few years, the fund has supported researchers and their efforts. Currently, the fund is focused on supporting the following areas:

- The Stefanie Spielman Chair in Cancer Imaging, currently held by Michael Tweedle, PhD. His work focuses on targeted molecular pharmaceuticals for imaging and therapy of cancer.
- Researchers in Ohio State's School of Pharmacy and the Comprehensive Cancer Center are developing new drugs for breast cancer. The fund will support continued efforts to discover and test these new drugs in clinical trials.

- An invaluable resource to support breast cancer research is a large collection of breast cancers characterized by all the relevant pathological features of the cancers and the treatments and outcomes of the patients with these breast cancers. The fund is supporting two such efforts, the Spielman Breast Cancer Tissue Archive Services and Spielman Breast Cancer Tumor Bank. The Tissue Archive Services, under the leadership of Charles Shapiro, MD, Director of Breast Cancer Medical Oncology at Ohio State, uses breast cancers already collected and stored in the Ohio State Pathology Department. The Tumor Bank collects breast cancers and blood samples from newly diagnosed patients. The Tissue Archive Services and the Tumor Bank allows for promising genes or proteins that first are discovered in the laboratory using cell lines or animal models to be quickly tested for their importance and relevance to human breast cancers that come from patients. Examples of ongoing research conducted using these resources include: the molecular factors associated with basaloid, or estrogen receptor negative, progesterone receptor negative and HER-2 negative (or "triple negative") breast cancers, and the molecular factors associated with tamoxifen resistance.

A Focus on Breast Cancer Research at Ohio State

'Triple Negative' Breast Cancer Focus of New Clinical Trials

Researchers at the OSUCCC – James are launching two clinical trials for patients with an aggressive form of breast cancer that resists treatment.

Breast cancer is not one disease, but rather a set of four or five diseases – each reacting differently to cancer treatment. While breast cancer survival rates have much improved due to advances in targeted therapies, along with chemotherapy and radiation, there is still a need to find solutions to treat one of the most fatal breast cancer subsets, such as "triple negative" breast cancer.

Breast cancer treatments that target hormone receptor positive breast cancer are not effective with triple negative. Consequently, a triple negative breast cancer provides a poor prognosis for those diagnosed, with young women and African American women more likely to develop the disease. It is a relatively rare subset of breast cancer, accounting for about 15 percent of all cases.

Researchers at OSUCCC – James are recruiting patients for two separate triple negative breast cancer treatment trials, combining chemotherapy with agents including PARP inhibitors and gamma secretase inhibitors. The studies, developed and initiated by OSUCCC – James investigators, are funded by the National Cancer Institute.

"We have launched a major research effort coordinated in clinical trials and laboratories devoted to developing novel therapeutics for treating triple negative breast cancer," says Charles Shapiro, MD, director of Breast Medical Oncology at OSUCCC – James. "Our goal is to find an effective therapy for this difficult-to-treat disease."

This type of breast cancer is so named because it is negative for the three markers used to determine treatment: the estrogen receptor, the progesterone receptor and HER-2-neu. Patients are said to have triple negative breast cancer when their tumors do not express these hormones.

"For patients with triple negative breast cancer, chemotherapy was, until very recently, the only option," says Shapiro, who is a leading authority in breast cancer and heads the Spielman Breast Cancer Tissue Archive Services and Spielman Breast Cancer Tumor Bank. "New drugs need to be developed, and the PARP inhibitor is the first of such novel therapeutics that seem to be effective in treating triple negative breast cancer."

Who is Your Champion?

Stefanie Spielman found her Champion in her husband, Chris, who went above and beyond his role as husband to care for her throughout her battle with cancer.

They established Stefanie's Champions to recognize one of the most critical factors in surviving cancer: loving, unwavering support. To show her gratitude, Stefanie gave Chris the first Champion award in 1999. Though Stefanie's battle ended in 2009, Stefanie's Champions continues her legacy by honoring those whose dedication and strength are powerful influences in the lives of cancer survivors. It was her hope that every survivor could name someone who stood by them, gave them courage and helped them through.

Nominate your Champion today.

To honor your Champion, please consider nominating him or her for Stefanie's Champions by January 15, 2011. Each award recipient must be nominated by a cancer survivor for exemplifying the qualities and values upheld by the Spielman family:

- Putting families first
- Demonstrating acts of kindness and dedication to a cancer patient
- Elevating a patient's battle with cancer above all other personal needs

To nominate your Champion, visit www.spielmanfund.com.

Team Up Against Breast Cancer with Kroger

Buckeye fans can show their support for breast cancer research by joining Kroger's "Team Up Against Cancer" campaign. Kroger has created a one-of-a-kind pink Ohio State football balloon, offered exclusively in central Ohio stores, which feature a pink "Block O" and a green Buckeye leaf on the front, with "Go Bucks" on the back. Balloons sell for $2.99 each and a portion of the proceeds will benefit the Spielman Fund.

"Team Up Against Cancer' balloons are a colorful addition to any tailgate party, and they confirm fans' support for breast cancer research. Fans may take their balloons home for their own celebrations or donate them back to the James Cancer Hospital and Solove Research Institute for patients undergoing treatment," says Bruce Macaulay, president of Kroger's Columbus division. "Stefanie was an inspiration to so many and we are proud to continue her legacy of hope."

Lil' Brutus Born a Buckeye

Lil' Brutus Born a Buckeye is a children's story about Brutus' journey to the "Shoe" and how he goes on to become the mascot for The Ohio State University. This unique picture book that is both educational and entertaining is part of HeartFelt Stories, a series of children's books that are geared towards teaching children life lessons and core values. A portion of the proceeds from Lil' Brutus Born a Buckeye benefits the Spielman Fund. For more information on how to purchase your copy of this new children's book, visit www.heartfeltstoriesllc.com.

Kenneth's Hair Salons & Day Spas Supports the Spielman Fund

Kenneth's slogan, "Get, Save, Give" captures the idea of their initiative to support the Stefanie Spielman Fund for Breast Cancer Research. For each new Kenneth's Hair or Spa product introduced with a Pink Ribbon label, customers save 10 percent. Additionally, 5 percent of the product price will be donated to the Spielman Fund. For more information, visit your local Kenneth's Hair Salon and Day Spa or visit their website at www.kenneths.com.

New T-shirt Pays Tribute to Spielmans

A new t-shirt featuring Chris Spielman's #36 that the former Buckeye and NFL great wore during his college days as a student-athlete at The Ohio State University is available online and in stores. A portion of the proceeds from these shirts, which were developed with Chris' input, benefit the Spielman Fund.

"Chris Spielman product has always sold very well in our stores and we are excited to offer our customers merchandise that not only celebrates Chris but also fights cancer," say Johnny Campbell, president of Cardboard Heroes. "Chris was someone I looked up to as an athlete during his playing days at Ohio State and in the NFL. But I believe most of his fans and our customers are more proud of his behavior and actions off the field of competition. His loyalty, his love for family and his passion to give forward to his community are why he is a true hero in my mind and why so many of our customers continue to buy his merchandise," Campbell says.

These special shirts are available at retail locations throughout Ohio including the Buckeye Room, Cardboard Heroes, College Tradition, Buckeye Corner and The Official Team Shop. Tees can also be found on-line at www.buckeyeroom.com, www.choeroes.com, and <http://shop.ohiostatebuckeyes.com>.

Volvo Rents Gives Back

Volvo Rents Construction Equipment recognized a need within the community and is doing everything they can to meet it. What initially began as the "Pink Boom" project in support of breast cancer associations has expanded into the "Color for the Cause" project. This project now benefits eight different charities including The Stefanie Spielman Fund for Breast Cancer Research. Volvo Rents supports these charities by painting their machinery with the color of the chosen charity and donating a percentage of that machine's rentals to the charity. Thanks to this program, the Spielman Fund now receives 25 percent of Volvo Rents' pink machinery rental sales. Look for Volvo Rents' pink excavator on various jobsites and see your local Volvo Rents store giving back to breast cancer research!

to sell 100,000 buckeye nuts in hopes of creating the world's largest buckeye necklace and in doing so, raise funds for the Spielman Fund. After selling each buckeye, they number and string it on a necklace that will eventually weigh more than 1,200 pounds. They have reserved numbers #1 and #36 in honor of Stefanie and Chris. Once the necklace has been completed, it will be available for public viewing. Almost 4,500 buckeyes have been sold to-date but they need your help to make their goal! Visit www.buckeyesforacure.com to sponsor your buckeye in the necklace for just $2.50 each.

Tough Enough to Wear Pink Raises Nearly $63,000 for Breast Cancer Funds

Kay Tracy and Chip Jackson are committed to raising breast cancer awareness and are continually inspired by survivors and their stories. In response to their desire to fight this disease, Kay and Chip began the "Tough Enough to Wear Pink Horse Show." In 2009, the event raised $19,500 for the Stefanie Spielman Patient Assistance Fund. Since the inception of the event in 2007, nearly $63,000 in total funding has been donated the Spielman Funds. This show is a combination of more than 50 open horse show and rodeo classes along with a silent auction, including a raffle of a pink manure spreader cleverly named "The Spreader of Hope." The fourth annual show took place September 25-26 in Wilmington, Ohio. When the dust settles, Kay and Chip are hoping to have raised more than $30,000 this year. To learn more about this unique event, visit www.pinkribbonhorseshow.com.

OSU Softball Team Hits a Home Run for Breast Cancer Research

Since 2001, the Ohio State softball team has hosted the Ohio Collegiate Charity Classic, an annual tournament that has become one of the largest sporting event fundraisers for breast cancer awareness in central Ohio. In 2009, the event raised $20,359 for the Spielman Fund and over the past nine years has raised a total of $133,870. This year's tournament took place on October 2-3 at Ohio State's Fred Beekman Park. The support from the Buckeye softball team has been outstanding and their efforts are truly making a difference in cancer research. For more information on this event, visit the Ohio State Athletics website, www.ohiostatebuckeyes.com, and search for "Softball" under the sports menu.

97.1 The Fan's Spielman Scramble Sells Out Double Shotgun Event

The sixth annual Spielman Scramble was held June 28 at Little Turtle Golf Club in Westerville. The event, hosted by 97.1 The Fan, started in 2005 and has grown every year since. This year, the tournament added a second shotgun start and still sold out for the fourth year in a row. Both groups experienced a great round of golf, accompanied by great weather, fabulous gifts, contests on almost every hole, breakfast provided by Panera Bread, box lunches provided by Jimmy John's and a sit-down dinner provided by Outback Steakhouse. This year's event raised more than $21,000, bringing the cumulative event total donated to the Spielman Fund to more than $90,000.

Todd Reigle, promotions director for The Fan says the station wants to continue to be a large supporter of the Spielman Fund and that The Fan enjoys events such as the Spielman Scramble because of the positive impact it has on the community. Next year's date for the Spielman Scramble is scheduled for June 13, 2011. For future information, check back with the Fan website, www.971thefan.com.

Columbus International Auto Show's Charity Gala

Every year, the Charity Gala is an exciting event that benefits a local organization committed to helping the community. This year was no different. The Columbus International Auto Show chose the Spielman Fund as the recipient of the proceeds from the 2010 Charity Gala held at the Greater Columbus Convention Center. This black-tie-optional event, called "Cars are the Stars," took place on the eve of the 2010 Columbus International Auto Show. The event, hosted by 10TV meteorologist Chris Bradley and chaired by Rhett Ricart from Ricart Automotive Group, was complete with a dinner program and music. The Columbus Auto Show later hosted a check presentation event, where the event committee presented the OSUCCC - James with a check for $34,000 for the Spielman Fund.

Coming Soon!

Our new JamesCare Comprehensive Breast Center is the first of its kind in central Ohio to offer the full continuum of breast cancer care – from prevention and screening through detection, diagnosis, treatment and survivorship – in one convenient location.

Located on Olentangy River Road, the Center will provide more than double the space of our existing facility in Dublin. The Center's proximity to Ohio State will enable breast cancer researchers and clinicians to work directly together on studies that will ultimately get us closer to creating a cancer-free world!
